

About Squalene, Vaccines, and Medicine in General

A debate that is going on at "Vaccine Knowledge Network." I'm the odd man out! Surprising!

Here is my response to the matters that be in vaccine development, medical science, and the people that operate within these confines!

I agree that "Firstly, science should be conducted with properly recognized, scrutinized and peer reviewed diligence." Unfortunately, people in high places and with ulterior motives, especially, to move a product for the sake of riches is an ethically disjointed venture to say the least.

I also agree with what you say here "Glib comments made in the press and on the blogosphere are made with little effort or expense but with the great potential to cause confusion and harm to the uninformed." This could be true if it weren't for so many people that have had to suffer from the misguided truths and dislocated ethics. I am at the frontlines, witnessing modern medicine's attempts to "improve" the health of so many. I question, and it's a really HUGE question, why are so many people that I have witnessed in all these many years are so utterly sick? I dove in to research the matter, so "glib" I am not. Serious, I am. I am sorry if this wasn't the proper place to vent my concerns, and learn from the perspective of this industry, but I felt it was the most important place to learn more from a different perspective, and educate. That you, John Beadles so graciously have provided. However, to teach from an enlightened perspective, should not be so fused with anger. All men and women of science and medicine, should remain with open minds. Remember "First, Do No Harm!"

As for the glib comments about Dr. Mercola, he has interviewed so many high profiled Doctors, and Journalists. I'm not certain where you get the tanning beds, or coco butter. However, if you read about Vitamin D, you may be well informed. If you listen to the podcast interview with Dr. Blaylock, Dr. Larry Palevsky, Sheryl Attkisson, Dr. Shiv Chopra, Dr. Garcia, Barbara Loe Fischer, Dr. James Balch, Congressman Ron Paul re: 1976 flu campaign, Dr. Sherry Tenpenny, Alex Jones, and many more, you will realize so much that you hadn't before. Also, these authors of books on the matter have done years of research! Bill Hamilton author of: "The River: A Journey to the Source of HIV and AIDS," Vaccine A: The Covert Government Experiment That's Killing Our Soldiers--And Why GI's Are Only The First Victims by Gary Matsumoto, "What The Pharmaceutical Companies Don't Want You To Know About VACCINES..."by: Dr. Todd M. Elsner. They can't all be wrong!!!

I would think anyone who cares enough to do the right thing, wouldn't stop at investigating the safety and efficacy of certain medicine and modalities. Look at the evidence, not at the dollars rolling in. Talk to parents that have full grown boys with autism what life is like???? Not a pretty picture. Ask someone with chronic disease, or better yet ask a patient with Lupus, or other autoimmune diseases, and ask them if they would like more research done, and facts not hidden and thrown away, and re-written to appease the pocket books of so many.

Don't blur the lines, of medical advances with medical fallacy. There are without a doubt many great advances, some very experimental, some with great potential, and some that have been manufactured to fit just right, because it can generate so much money.

I bet you and many others, have never been at the bedside of a patient with tubes coming out of every orifice. I'm just guessing, because only then, would you possibly be more open about the truth. However, like most things in life that have gone wrong, people are quite content as long as they can sit back and open a beer, put their feet up at the end of the day, and drown out their worries with a big flat screen TV. with surround sound. It might not be you personally, but it is many. I can guarantee that won't solve any problems.
